Gentlemen:

I am in possession of a collection of Old French money-paper, known as ASSIGNATS; and due to financial conditions would like to dispose of same.

Enclosed herein find photograph and data sheet.

Would appreciate if you will kindly estimate the value of my collection and let me know if you would be interested in the sale.

For you have connections with museums and private collectors.

Thanking you in advance for a prompt answer, I remain,

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:

It is very difficult to give you a proper answer concerning your French assignats. Foreign paper money is so little collected in this country that there is no definite price on these and when they come up for sale they bring next to nothing. Also, so many of these assignats were issued in all denominations and series that they are still extremely common and in France I think even today they are almost valueless. In this country there seems to be a great many of them. We have here about 200, some in sheets and as far as I know cover about all the issues and denominations and we would probably put a value on the whole collection of only a few dollars. You might write to D. C. Wismer, Hatfield, Penna. and ask him if there is any market for these pieces.

Very truly yours,
